2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions :

The inventors of the first aircraft were not scientists. They did not even finish high school. They were just ordinary brothers with a big dream- a dream of flying.

Wilbur and Orville Wright grew up in Indiana in a large family. Their father, Milton Wright, was a religious man. Neither child finished high school. Instead of sitting in class and reading, they wanted to work and make things. When they were 18 and 22, they started up their own printing press and bicycle shop.

One day Wilbur read an interesting story in the newspaper about a man trying to fly in a glider. The man died, but the story gave Wilbur an idea. He decided to teach himself about flying in order to make the perfect glider. Together, Orville and Wilbur successfully tested their new glider on the beach. Then they decided to make it into a flying machine. They put an engine and propeller on the glider and called their new machine the «Wright Flyer». It broke down in its first test, but the young men didn't give up.

With a little more hard work, the Wright Flyer made a successful flight. On December 17, 1903, the Wright brothers made history by flying the Wright Flyer over the beach at Kitty Hawk, North Carolina. It was then that the first airplane was born.

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions :

People from long ago used to live in groups in caves or in jungles. They wandered from place to place hunting animals and looking for food like nuts, roots, wild fruits and berries.

Then later, people began to settle along or near rivers because they were sources of water, food, trade and transport. They used the river water for drinking, cooking and washing. Their animals also drank from these rivers.

The rivers were full of fish. Rivers also made good farmland for these early river settlers. During the yearly flood, rivers carried along with them river mud which was very fertile. This fertile soil was left behind after each flood. Thus, river banks or valleys were suitable places for farming. The people started to cultivate their own crops.

Besides the fertile soil, rivers also provided a form of transport. Men began to use rafts and boats as a form of water transport to carry their extra food. They sailed to another part of the river to trade with the other settlers. So, they became farmers as well as traders. When they began to travel up and down the rivers, they learnt about the customs and beliefs of the other settlers.

As trade and transport grew, the population also grew. These river settlements grew into cities, and these cities became centres of great civilisations like those found in early Egypt, India and China. These civilisations had powerful governments with many laws and government workers.

✦ Choose the correct answer from a, b, c or d :

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions :

Which job do you want to do when you leave school? 150 years ago, there were not many choices. Some people took academic jobs such as becoming a lawyer or an accountant.

Others took jobs that needed vocational skills, such as being a farmer. Today, however, there are hundreds of new kinds of jobs which we did not have just ten years ago. This is good news for young people today, because there are many new and exciting jobs that they can do. An example is computer programming for mobile phone companies. Mobile phones are developing every year, and the phone companies need people to help to develop them even more. Another new job is something called library science.

This is knowing how to understand information on the internet. This is very important for businesses which have a lot of information about their customers, and want to know how to use it so they can sell their things. So there are a lot of opportunities for work in the future, but they may not be jobs that you have heard of before.

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions :

Why do so many people feel the need to make fun of and judge others? This question crosses my mind daily. I wonder why we, as humans, feel the need to judge and degrade others. It's human nature to compare ourselves to others whether it's to our family members, peers or even celebrities we see in the media. We base our judgments of ourselves and others on these comparisons. Judging others sometimes gives people a sense of prestige because demeaning others can create a false sense of security and identity. No two people are completely alike. We need to accept these differences and stop judging people. It is hurtful to them and makes the people ridiculing them look bad. In fact, I find myself judging others more often than not. I think it's unfair for me to draw conclusions and opinions about others without knowing them. I hear people say things about others all the time without consequences and this encourages them to continue getting their laughs through other peoples' pain. It's hard to listen to, but it can be stopped. As young adults, it's our duty to make a conscience effort to be more accepting towards others' differences, especially at college.

2. Read the following passage, then answer the questions :

Some of us doodle all the time, others only occasionally. And there are people who say that they never do – though a closer look at the notepad next to their telephone, this week's shopping list or the odd empty envelope may tell a different story. To the trained eye, every little scribble we make betrays our hidden desires, strengths and weaknesses. What do our doodles mean? Expert Gloria Hargreaves reveals what lies behind the lines we draw and the scribbles we make in idle moments.

A large, simply outlined bird shows a clear thinker with a very demanding conscience and definite ideas of right and wrong. A flying bird signifies someone who is tolerant and broad-minded. High flying gulls are the sign of a relaxed, easy going person.

Boxes piled neatly on top of one another show a person who is tidy and well-organised. Boxes within boxes shout "let me out" and suggest that you are feeling trapped.
